
Likha hai is a hindi song by the Indian rock band Nirahua. The lyrics of the song are about a woman, who lives in the north-eastern part of India. In this region, there is an irregular weather pattern called "hathon ki lakeeron mein likha hai". Which means that what's happening on the surface of water is very different from what's happening on land. In this case, falling rain particles accumulate and form large lakes of fresh water which can be used to meet drinking water demands. This phenomenon has been observed by scientists and experts, but has yet to be explained scientifically or technically why it happens. Likha hai is a song about this phenomenon. The video of the song was shot in the month of September 2008 and was released on 3 February 2009, with a very limited release in India. But at the time of release, it became an instant hit and topped most Indian music charts and is still considered as one of Nirahua's best songs. The video has been directed by Mr. Dinesh Verma.

The other two songs "Jee Karda" and "Love Love Love" were not highly appreciated by audiences, but managed to get into the top ten charting songs for that year in India. Likha hai has a great advantage in lyrics and music, which helps it to achieve the better chart positions. Playback singer : Gauri singing in english. Songwriter : Amit Trivedy.
